"A memorable invocation began the show and, like a rocket, The Poet of the Moon is propelled into the Cosmos. With a long wooden staff, Glaysher appears like Prospero, a lasting call for peace and unity, a unique type of optimism." —Theater Pizzazz, February 20, 2024, NYC Review, Off-Broadway Actors Temple Theatre

THEATRE INDUSTRY MARKETPLACE, TOURING

I am seeking Patron Donations or Gifts, professional theatre publicity and production support, to consult and work with me to produce my epic tale The Parliament of Poets, and am open to touring throughout North America, the United Kingdom, and Europe. I'm interested in live theatre, not film or screen.

SYNOPSIS

Apollo, the Greek god of poetry, calls all the poets of the nations, ancient and modern, East and West, to assemble on the moon to consult on the meaning of modern life, seeking our common humanity, with Don Quixote as Master of Ceremonies. The Parliament of Poets sends the main character, the Poet of the Moon, on a Journey to the seven continents to learn from all of the spiritual and wisdom traditions of humankind.

I play solo the main character, The Poet of the Moon, and Black Elk, Chief Seattle, Don Quixote, Merlin, Rumi, Vyasa, Ta Chak, Du Fu, Faerie Queene, Tolstoy, Dante, Borges, Sogolon. Many dozens of other poets from around the world are alluded to or appear in vignettes. The book version has about thirty major characters.

The story is a very multicultural, pluralistic, multi-religious interfaith tale of people coming together from all of the spiritual traditions, Judaism, Christianity, Islam, Hinduism, Buddhism, Taoism, Shintoism, and indigenous wisdom traditions. The major characters are all representative voices for their civilizations and the best of their teachings for peace and human harmony, evoking the common unity of humanity.

OUTLINE

After more than a decade of over 70 performances in many settings and venues, in Michigan and around the USA in four States, including nine (9) studio or blackbox theatres, I realize that to continue I need the support of industry people and organizations capable of developing and promoting my epic poem.

I am open to touring anywhere that I might be able to reach an audience of people who are globally minded, possibly older and interested in serious literature, world religions, and culture, or university and college audiences, though I've always had people of every age and background who have responded very favorably and expressed enjoyment.

In 1977 I took a theatre course in the Interpretative Reading of Poetry, learning that the Greek rhapsodes would travel throughout ancient Greece reciting Homer. Before long the idea of writing an epic poem became compelling and the dream that one day I might also revive the art of the ancient Greek rhapsodes, blended with the modern style of dramatic reading in theatres by Charles Dickens and Edgar Allan Poe.

During the summer of 2023 I performed a 1,600-line theatre version of the 9,100 lines of my epic poem at the Toronto Fringe Festival, seven times at the Theatre Passe Muraille, and at the Edinburgh Fringe, another seven performances at artSpace@StMarks Unitarian Church, a 200-seat space with exquisite acoustics superior to many blackbox theatres. In February 2024, I performed six times at the Off-Broadway Actors Temple Theatre in the NYC theatre district.

The professional director with thirty years of theatre experience that I hired for the Wayne State University studio production thought that it would take about eighteen hours to produce the entire epic poem, meaning there is a massive amount of material beyond what can possibly be conveyed in only 100-minutes. I've often thought there are actually three or four almost completely different productions that could be staged from the book. Depending on a director's choice and mix of cantos or episodes the number could easily exceed that.

I have done versions with three professionally trained actors and another with five, plus myself, in both cases, playing the main character, The Poet of the Moon. I now want to produce and perfect a two and then a three-hour version with two additional cast members performing as rhapsodes, passing the cue, as the ancient Greeks did in both Homer's Iliad and actual performance. I think now that ideally they should be actors with training in Shakespeare and experience performing his blank verse, but I do not have the money to hire them. While mine is not Elizabethan verse, it is not the mundane contemporary tongue and requires sensitivity to poetic rhythm and literary embellishment and meaning. After years of mostly solo performance, I recognize I am in danger of blowing out my voice with nearly 1,700 lines if I continue solo, having experienced three vocal hemorrhages, and really do require two more actors as rhapsodes to expand and carry the scope of a longer performance. Ultimately, I want then to add many of the thirty major characters to the performance for the three-hour version. I have now worked with 34 stage managers and theatre people, most of whom were professionally trained and highly experienced in various capacities.

Although to date I've only been able to produce mostly versions of an hour to an hour and a half, with about ten to twelve characters and ten episodes, and then usually with an eighth to a quarter of their lines in the book. I intend to expand and develop my productions, and I am very actively looking for the right industry professionals to help me do it. I'm currently also looking to rent another theatre in San Francisco, where I first performed on stage in 2018 at Shelton Theater.

To be clear, I am seeking Patron Donations and Gift funding for one year of solo performance; then envision a second year with two actors capable of performing as rhapsodes in a two-hour production; followed by a third year of bringing on board thirty additional actors, for a three-hour performance. I anticipate hiring and working with a casting director, which I've done in the past, on open auditions for the additional cast members, especially with experience with Shakespeare. I think touring would be possible in spring and summers. The timeframe might entail somewhere closer to three to five years.

For more than a decade and a half I have wanted to tour in the United Kingdom, Canada, and Europe, but I don't know how that would be accomplished, especially the legalities and logistics involved, if it's even possible. In addition to theatre productions, I'd like to perform in some of the great historical sites in Great Britain and Europe, which I think would be especially dramatic, such as a few of the old Greek and Roman amphitheatres that allow it, as at Epidauros, cathedrals, and the English ruins of abbeys and churches. Thematically, I think such settings would work very well and result in a very powerful experience for audiences. While I could study and write alone for thirty years, I realize I require a lot of professional support to tour in the USA, UK, elsewhere, and it would have to be a win-win situation for everyone. Alternatively, I seek a theatre, or will create one.

Jeff Thomakos of Michigan Michael Chekhov has called The Parliament of Poets, "A unique and moving experience," while Canada's Hans Ruprecht of CKCU Literary News at Carleton University in Ottawa has called it, "A great epic poem of startling originality and universal significance, in every way partaking of the nature of world literature." I've had more than forty reviews and blurbs to date since its publication in 2012. (More in Program).

In addition to a theatre course in 1977 on the performance of poetry, I studied Shakespeare with an Oxford scholar and in another course with one from Harvard. I have been a theatre goer all my life from my early twenties, and at the Stratford Festival in Canada since 1998, usually seeing three to four plays or more a year, a few times five to six, a major influence on my own performance, as well as the Shaw Festival, the Old and Young Vic, NYC theatre, Noh plays in Japan, and Chinese opera in Beijing, and so on. I've also had voice lessons with a member of the Detroit Opera chorus and private lessons with a theatre coach in the Michael Chekhov Technique, who was the director for my two-hour production at Wayne State University.

TOURING

In terms of touring solo, I prefer intimate blackbox proscenium theatres of about 200 seats or more with 15' plus ceilings but will consider other spaces, including universities, museums, churches, etc. Honorarium negotiable between $2,000 to $3,500 or more, room and board allowance, travel expenses depending on distance from Rochester, Michigan and size of audience. Flexible and open to other arrangements.

SECOND PRODUCTION

Into the Ruins of Modernity is Apollo’s Troupe second production, intimately connected with The Parliament of Poets: An Epic Poem (294 pages). Weaves together much of my lyric and narrative poetry from two books, Into the Ruins and The Bower of Nil (90 minutes). Dramatization, not a conventional poetry reading, but more focused possibly on a select literary or university and college audience knowledgeable of modern poetry and philosophy. A sweeping survey of the atrocities we human beings perpetrate on one another and the philosophical descent into modern nihilism that has made dehumanization and violence all the more possible. Over the long arc of global civilization, affirms the struggle toward developing international institutions like the United Nations and a wider understanding of the depths of human consciousness. Evokes a reaffirmation of our deepest human capacities for cooperation and peace.

TECH - Everything below adapted to the space. $8,000 of professional equipment.

Can setup in two hours with the assistance of two stagehands or managers and strike under an hour and a half. In a new space, I find three hours for setup are best to trouble shoot with local help anything unexpected, or a separate tech rehearsal prior to a run, so that I'm not beginning a performance exhausted from a frenzied setup.
